

MASTER IN SOCIAL TRANSFORMATION – POLITICS, PHILOSOPHY, AND ECONOMICS (M.A.)

Your Profile

You want to take your experience and knowledge to the next level. You are looking for an advanced degree that will qualify you for taking leadership and responsibility at the intersection of economics, politics and civil society. You like to deal with an increasingly complex and globalized world in need for more peaceful and sustainable ways of living. You are passionate about re-thinking the status quo and transferring ideas from other disciplines and use them to help build a better, more just and convivial society.

Key Information

By studying the Master in Social Transformation, you will learn about how society functions, and explore critically philosophical dimensions of existing political and economic systems. With this, you will be able to creatively re-imagine the world you want to help build.

Each module is strategically designed to help you become increasingly knowledgeable and constructively critical of the economic and socio-political conditions and powers of existing societies. Moreover, you will help get the tools you need to become an agent of transformation and change in the world.

The 4 rigorous semesters holistically cover all the disciplines of philosophy, politics and economics linked to leadership.

Parallel to the key modules, you can choose between different specializations (see below).
